

WILL BE BIG SHOW, SILVESTER SAYS

Police Superintendent Enthused After Inspecting Exposition Grounds.

CHIEFS MAY PAY A VISIT

Plans Making for Trip From Washington if Convention Is Held Here.

After spending two days in Norfolk last week, during which time he made a thorough canvass of the exposition grounds, Maj. Richard Sylvester, superintendent of the Washington police, has returned to this city enthusiastic over the prospects for the success of the Jamestown Exposition.

It is almost an assured fact that the annual convention of the International Police Association will meet here next year. After holding sessions for two or three days they will probably adjourn to Norfolk, where they will finish the association's business, and spend the time sightseeing.

Making Big Progress.

Considerable progress is being made on the buildings, and the grounds are rapidly taking on an attractive appearance, says Major Sylvester. Speaking of his trip and the probable situation at the Exposition next year, he said: "I recently spent a day with the chief of police and exposition authorities in Norfolk with a view of ascertaining the prospect for a satisfactory visit on the part of the members of the International Police Association, who may convene in annual session in Washington next April or May. The Jamestown Exposition grounds are half an hour's ride by trolley from Norfolk. The same time is required to make the place from Old Point, and it is in short and direct communication from Virginia Beach and other pleasure resorts.

On a Picturesque Spot.

Through the courtesy of Silas E. Snyder, exposition press representative, I went over the 400-acre space, where new administration and exhibit buildings are under course of construction. No more picturesque spot could have been selected.

"It looks out upon Chesapeake bay, Fort Monroe, and the Rip Raps are in plain view, and upon this water front a great naval review and picture of the Monitor and Merrimack fight are to be produced. The grounds are inclosed by a fence of barbed wire and a rambling rose, and tropical trees and plants embellish the interior. Cement walks and good roadways are being constructed.

Not Enough Hotels.

"Many foreign military companies, with their bands of music have registered to be present, so that the whole affair will be a great attraction. The only difficulty I could discover at this time is hotel accommodations for the thousands who want to go there.

"The different nearby resorts have splendid and large buildings, and inside inns is to be erected, and Mr. Consoles, the leading hotel man, will enlarge his houses, but even then there will, in my opinion, be a dearth of rooms. It is to the advantage of the affair that the winter season is open, allowing the work to proceed, and those who could not go in the summer would not object to having sea breezes out of the side. The exposition headquarters are in full blast, and space is being taken up every day.

"I am sure the results will be beyond anticipation, with the great number of railway facilities and waterways for reaching the point from the twenty or thirty nearby patriotic States."

WORK BEING PUSHED ON HYDE BUILDING

When Completed the New School Will Accommodate 325 Pupils.

The new Hyde School building has been completed beyond the first story. The building will contain eight rooms and accommodate about 325 pupils. The acquisition of additional land adjacent to this building, however, is essential. The pupils from the Addison, Curtis, and the new Hyde will all be compelled to recreate in an area between the buildings very little larger than the yard of a private dwelling. The District has taken for school purposes several rooms of the Wagonman mansion, where classes will be established until the completion of the new building. The Wagonman mansion is also occupied for private school purposes.

MANCHURIA FLOATED OFF HONOLULU REEF

Pacific Mail Steamship Company's Vessel Saved From Going to Pieces.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—Officials of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company received a cablegram this afternoon stating that their steamer, the Manchuria, which stranded on a reef near Honolulu several days ago, had been successfully floated.

She will reach Honolulu tonight.

WORM RAVAGES NOT FATAL TO FINE SHADE TREES

Harvard Street Pin Oaks, However, Pretty Well Used Up.

STRIPPED OF TOP LEAVES

But Expert Treeologist Lanham Says They'll Pull Through O. K.

Picture Shows How the Rapacious Worms Have Stripped the Foliage From the Top Branches.

Residents along Harvard street, west of Fourteenth street are loud in voicing their gratification over the fact that after all, the young pin oaks in that neighborhood, looked upon with natural pride as the shade-providers for this and future generations, are not doomed to an untimely death. This has been the fear ever since a swarm of destroying tree worms made their onslaught on the tender leaves of the young oaks some weeks ago, but it was dispelled when, in response to a plaintive query, Trueman Lanham, superintendent of parking and Dodge, the unfortunate victim of a jealous lover's bullet, which were conducted at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon at Oak Hill Chapel.

Impressive and pathetic were the last rites over the body of Elizabeth V. Dodge, the unfortunate victim of a jealous lover's bullet, which were conducted at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon at Oak Hill Chapel.

Filling the chapel long before the funeral hour had arrived were hundreds of friends and relatives. Some came from a distance to attend the ceremonies. The young girl was particularly popular among the young people of her neighborhood, and they came in large numbers to pay a last tribute of love.

The Rev. Dr. C. H. Butler, pastor of Keller Memorial Lutheran Church, Ninth and Maryland avenue northeast, officiated, and following prayer and their appearance today would not inspire a great degree of confidence in Superintendent Lanham's optimistic declaration for their future. The worms, whether they work with tooth or nail, hammer or saw, matters little; the fact remains that they have made the trees resemble a sweet apple tree after the "village cut-ups" have gotten in their work. The tops of the trees are entirely shorn of leaves, while the lower branches remain not unlike tattered umbrellas. Whether the worms found the leaves of the lower branches unpalatable is not yet learned to properly estimate this particular worm's appetite, but they satisfied themselves with simply eating, and ravenously, at that, the topmost leaves and leaving the lower ones for their friends—the pesky caterpillars.

FRIENDS GATHER AT BIER OF MURDERED DODGE GIRL

Impressive Funeral Services Held In Oak Hill Chapel Over Little Victim of Jealous Lover's Bullet.

Scriptural reading, spoke appropriately of the life and character of the dead girl. The pallbearers chosen from among the dead girl's friends were: F. W. Myers, R. V. H. Jama, J. J. McLaughlin, and E. S. Burr.

At the conclusion of the services in the chapel, the burial service of the church was held at the grave. The Daughters of America, an organization to which Miss Dodge belonged, conducted a special prayer and song service.

Preceding the service at St. John's church was a brief one at the home of Mrs. Lee in Silver Spring, Md. The pallbearers were Andrew A. Blair, Robert E. Brooke, John J. Hemphill, Henry Harrison, Edward M. Byrnes, George H. Lamar, and Frank P. Blair, third.
